

Empirical expression vector as input

Hi all,

Is there a way to get around the random expression assignment? It would be a nice addition if users can provide an empirical distribution (a vector of RPKMs or something like that) obtained from a real experiment. This would help on the validation/comparison of observed and simulated profiles at the genome level.

Thanks

David Casero